Drafting Strategy:

>Draft a top 7 QB
>Feel Free to Wait on a TE but don't miss a Stud at a bargain price!
>Draft 1 Kicker and 1 Defense. Fill bye weeks with free agents. Do not draft K or DEF until 4 rounds left. Try to be the last one to draft a starting K or DEF.
>Forget about bye weeks...maximize your points!
> Look for RB Value in Rounds 7-10, WR Value 10-13.
> Don't draft a back up TE, unless you can use them at Flex.
>Focus on getting good value in the middle rounds and take chances at running back.
>Use the tiers to manage your draft, do not get caught in runs. You want to start runs on positions if possible
>Focus on getting a solid starting line up together, then further solidify your flex position (your RB and WR)
>Drafting a solid back up QB will save you roster spots to use for other RB that may pan out. Look for your guy around the 11th round.
>Be wary of RB that share time. Wait for first one to go.
>Stay young, do not draft old worn out big names
>Stick with your cheat sheet; abandon your strategy for better value
>Take the time to review Mock Drafts and target players you want each rd. for the first 13 rounds or so, to help you with maximizing your starting line up and not taking a guy too early and setting up steals.
>Do not draft an extra player at a position looking to trade later.
